CHIEF OF POLICE

A wide-angle photograph of a university campus in Bellingham, WA. In the foreground, a large green lawn is dotted with students. A group of about 15 students is sitting in a circle on the grass, engaged in conversation. To their right, a path leads through the lawn towards a large, multi-story brick building in the background. The path is lined with mature trees, some with vibrant red and orange autumn foliage. In the lower-left corner, there are bright orange azalea bushes. The sky is overcast with soft, grey clouds. A semi-transparent green banner is overlaid on the top left of the image.

THE 01. OPPORTUNITY

Western Washington University (Western) is conducting a national search for its next Chief of Police.

This is an extraordinary opportunity for an accomplished law enforcement professional to lead a university police department at one of Washington's most desirable public universities. Western is located in the City of Bellingham, a coastal community of 90,000 overlooking Bellingham Bay, the San Juan Islands, and the North Cascades Mountain range. The city lies 90 miles north of Seattle, 60 miles south of Vancouver, British Columbia, and an hour's drive from 10,778-foot Mount Baker. Western invites interest from police leaders who can significantly impact the culture and effectiveness of the police department to support the University's mission.

02. WESTERN WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

Western Washington University is a public institution with more than 15,000 students in seven academic colleges, plus an Honors College and a graduate school.

Western is nationally recognized for the quality of its academic programs and emphasis on social mobility, research, and public service.

Western Washington University is committed to achieving excellence through advancing inclusive success, increasing their Washington impact, and focusing on transformational education grounded in the liberal arts and sciences and based on innovative scholarship, research and creative activity. Western's greatest strength is the outstanding students, faculty, staff, and alumni/ae who make up their community.

Western supports an inclusive governance structure and provides a learning and working environment in which everyone can thrive.

In pursuit of this excellence, individual employees are expected to establish and maintain productive and effective inclusive working relationships amongst diverse populations, including staff, faculty, administration, student, and external constituents. Further, individual employees are expected to have the ability to operationalize sustainability concepts (economic, societal, environmental) into all aspects of their job duties. Western ranked 16th in the 2022 edition of Best Colleges in Regional Universities West.

Western views equity, justice, and inclusion as fundamental principles integral to their success. WWU values diverse experiences and perspectives and strives to create learning, living, and working environments that promote respect, access, opportunity, and equity for all.

WESTERN WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY:

Vision

Western Washington University prepares and inspires individuals to explore widely, think critically, communicate clearly, and connect ideas creatively to address our most challenging needs, problems, and questions.

03. THE WESTERN WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY POLICE DEPARTMENT

Western's police officers embody the university's values and work hard to ensure everybody they contact is treated fairly and professionally.

The Western Washington University Police Department employs 15 sworn peace officers, including a chief, assistant chief, three sergeants, one corporal, and nine officers. Each sworn officer is required to attend the Washington State Criminal Justice Training Commission's Basic Law Enforcement Academy or Equivalency Academy. Officers are commissioned by Western Washington University and certified by Washington State as General Authority Peace Officers.

The department operates 24-hours a day, year-round to provide public safety to students, staff, and visitors. The department is in the process of becoming accredited and holds itself to the highest standards of professionalism and adheres to smart practices in policing. Many of Western's officers and dispatchers have earned a bachelor's degree in criminal justice, sociology, psychology, community relations or other public service-related field.

The department continues to focus on professionalism and has increased diversity in its ranks, including top administrative positions. In the winter of 2021, body-worn cameras were issued to all officers, reflecting a commitment to accountability and transparency.

THE POSITION.

The Chief of Police provides expertise and leadership on improving university safety by aligning campus and departmental policies with effective and innovative policing practices.

The Chief of Police partners with other administrators, department managers, and colleagues across the university. The Chief of Police reports to the Vice President for Business and Financial Affairs and is responsible for strategic planning and administrative direction for Western's full-service police department.

The Chief manages resources to promote a safe, secure, and unbiased educational environment for the students, faculty, staff and visitors. This includes responsibility for the preservation of peace, protection of life and property, and the enforcement of laws and regulations in a manner that is consistent with best practices and that embodies the values, mission, goals, and philosophy of the university's administration and the Board of Trustees.

As with any university police chief, this position involves significant discretionary decision-making and planning to ensure a positive impact on the well-being of the university community and safety of their students, faculty, staff, and visitors. In this highly visible position, the Chief of Police represents the university's public safety efforts to the university community. The Chief of Police also represents the university when interacting with law enforcement and other allied agencies, community groups, students, parents, and university visitors.
